

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

windows@walsh
June 9 – August 29, 2008
Opening Reception
Thursday, June 12 - 5pm to 8pm

The Walsh Gallery at Seton Hall University is pleased to announce an exhibition of installation art to be on display in the arcade windows along the perimeter of the Walsh Library. This invitational exhibition features artists Gianluca Bianchino, Evonne Davis, Asha Ganpat, Beth Gilfilen, Ryan Higgins and Nyugen Smith. Each of the six artists will create site-specific artworks which will be on display 24 hours, 7 days a week for the duration of the exhibition.

“windows@walsh” was organized by Gallery Director, Jeanne Brasile. Noted Brasile, “This exhibition will extend the presence of art outside the confines of the Walsh Gallery, allowing accidental encounters with art in a non-traditional setting.” The windows are similar to storefront windows, challenging the artists to create work in a space that is roughly 87” high, 95” wide and 29” deep. The artists will work in a variety of media to communicate their ideas to the public. This is the first time that the library windows have been used for such an event. Brasile hopes that this exhibition will become an annual one, providing exposure for local artists, while enriching the campus with additional venues to view art. The exhibition is free and open to the public.

For 150 years, Seton Hall University has been a catalyst for leadership, developing the whole student, mind, heart and spirit. Seton Hall combines the resources of a large university with the personal attention of a small liberal arts college. Its attractive suburban campus is only 14 miles by train, bus or car to New York City, with the wealth of employment, internship, cultural and entertainment opportunities the city offers. Seton Hall is a Catholic university that embraces students of all races and religions, challenging each other to better the world with integrity, compassion and a commitment to serving others.
